

ADOPTION AND SHIPPING POLICY

When a person decides that they are sure they want one of our baby birds, I email them a PayPal Invoice for the deposit. They do not have to have a PayPal account to pay this way, only a major credit card. The invoice is for a deposit to hold the bird until it is old enough to be picked up or shipped. The deposit will apply to the price of the bird. The deposit is non-refundable.

Once a deposit is received, I start emailing updated photos weekly to the adoptive parents. I also send update email...eating solid food, have their eyes open, trimmed wings, etc. etc. I also email other helpful hints and information regarding the care of the bird.

When the bird is abundance weaned and ready to go, please bring the balance owed in cash. I can send you a PayPal Invoice for the balance if you prefer. If 3 days have gone by, after weaning, and payment is not received, the deposit is voided and I will place the bird back up for adoption.

If the bird is to be shipped, I will email a PayPal Invoice for the balance owed on the bird, plus the amount for the shipping charges, approximately one week before the desired date of shipping. Once received, I will call and book a flight for the bird and email you all the information. On the day of the flight, I will email you to let you know that the bird was received at the airport. I will give you a WayBill number so you can track the flight online. Whoever picks the bird up at the airport will be required to show a photo ID.
